AMC Mountaineering

Outings & Classes

(after all, we are a “Mountaineering” club)

Glacier Travel, Snow Skills, and Crevasse Rescue Seminar:

If you want to attend this seminar the first requirement is begging the weather gods for SNOW! Sacrificing a virgin or your neighbors’ annoying dog, or giving up chocolate for Lent may also be helpful.

AMC Mountaineering offers an introduction to winter mountaineering and skills required for climbing the glaciated peaks of North America. Glacier travel school is a multi day course held Wednesday January 9, 2013, 7:00-9:00pm and all day Saturday/Sunday January 12-13, 2013 on Mt. Humphrey’s near Flagstaff, AZ. All class participants must also be available to meet in Flagstaff the evening of Friday January 11 at 8:00pm, location TBA. The seminar fee is $60 for first time students and $30 for returning students.

The Saturday and Sunday portions of the course will be conducted in the field on the slopes of the San Francisco Peaks and will include one night of camping on the snow above 10,000 ft. Students are expected to be in reasonable physical condition and prepared for long days of working in cold weather and camping on the snow.

Class time will run late into Sunday, expect to return home late Sunday night. The course has an extensive list of required equipment; get the complete list at the time of sign up. Some items such as crampons, ice axes and snow shoes can be rented from the AMC for a small fee. All participants must have among other things mountaineering boots, winter weight sleeping bag, suitable clothing for climbing and camping in the snow. All boots used in the class must be approved by the instructor.

DEADLINE to sign up is December 1, 2012

Prerequisite: Instructor approval.

Smith Rock – Oregon

Randi and I were on a two and a half month trip in our RV. We did a little bit of everything including a 2½ week trip to Inuvik in the Northwest Territories of Canada on our dual-sport motorcycles. On the way back to Arizona, we stayed in Sisters, Oregon for a few days and took one day to climb at Smith Rock that is located north of Bend, Oregon near a small town of Terrebonne.

~Tom & Randi Folwell

Smith Rock State Park encompasses 651 acres on the Oregon high desert plateau, which hovers around 3000 feet in elevation.

The park and campground are open year-round. A $5 day use permit or a current state park camp receipt is needed for each vehicle. A yearly permit is available for $30. Day use permits are available from the self service pay stations.

Dogs are permitted on a leash.

Hiking trails offer spectacular views of the surrounding area. You can spend 30 minutes walking along the river or a full day making a loop on trail systems that extend outside of the park to Deschutes Land Trust, USFS and BLM land.

The major rock faces are composed of welded tuff (compressed volcanic ash) reaching a height of up to 550 feet. The picnic and campground areas sit on top of the rimrock, which is made up of columnar basalt.

There are over 1800 climbing routes in and around the park ranging from some of the best sport climbs in the world to... “Why would anyone want to climb that pile of choss.”

Outdoor enthusiasts climb, hike, mountain bike, trail run and horseback ride year-round, but summer temperatures can reach 100+ degrees (f), and in the dead of winter the thermometer stays close to the freezing mark (32f) during the day. Spring and fall are the best months for outdoor activities.

Wi-Fi Hotspot from BendBroadband is available for park visitors.

The three pictures on the left are one of me setting up an anchor and the other two pictures are of Randi and me climbing. We climbed in an area where it was easy to top rope and it was called "Rope De Dope Block." The river you see in the foreground is the Crooked River. Across the Crooked River, the other three pictures are of the "Morning Glory Wall Area." You can see climbers on the wall and during the time we were there the two climbers made it to the top. The climbing book "Weekend Rock of Oregon" is a good basic book that covers the area for most of the popular climbs.

AMC Basic Outdoor Rock Climbing Class

Fall 2012

Did I remember to say “THIS IS THE BEST GROUP EVER!”? October was a busy month topped off by a great Basic Outdoor Rock Climbing School. The turnout was just right with thirty students completing the fall session, all in fine fashion. Many of the students had previous experience in the gym and were chomping at the bit to get out on real rock; others had no previous climbing experience. Regardless, every single student took right to the rock with a great mixture of grit and determination and “let’s have some fun” attitude.

And all the instructors were terrific! This class simply cannot happen without so many members coming back to share their knowledge, skills, and time. And a big thank you goes out to the outing leaders - Rogil Schroeter, Jeff Nagel, Dave McClintic, Frank Vers, John Gray, Curtis Stone, and Chris Meyer - who took us out to the crags to test our new-found skills. And finally, let’s give a big shout-out to Ron and Ruth for sharing their home for another great grad party.

I’ve thoroughly enjoyed instructing this class over the years and this class really stands out. Did I remember to say “THIS IS THE BEST CLASS EVER”?

Queen Creek Clean-up & Climb

We did it again! And oh how the highway shines!

The AMC maintains a stretch of US Highway 60 at the Oak Flat turnoff just West of Devils Canyon and the Adopt-a-Highway sign helps symbolize the Club's presence at one of the richest climbing areas in Arizona. A couple of times each year we gather at the turnoff and pick up roadside trash tossed from passing cars along the highway. Cleanup & Climb outings are open to everyone and we had twenty-three members help with the highway cleanup and picked up twenty bags of trash.

The climbing leaders arrived early and set up a generous assortment of climbs in a variety of grades at the Pancake House in Upper Devils Canyon. If you've climbed there then you know that the Pancake House is nicely spread out and offers dozens of high-quality sport routes. Many of the lines were put up by Marty Karabin and his skill and style are evident throughout the area.

The weather was perfect and the friction the rock afforded was excellent. It was another of those days when you just want to stay out on the walls.

After a full day of climbing, most of the group headed to Superior for Mexican food and beer at Los Hermanos. Much of the conversation aimed towards the Thanksgiving outing in Joshua Tree. If you've never been there, it's a must climb destination. Thanksgiving at J-Tree is an AMC tradition that's been going on for many years and is really a blast! Good food, great company and some of the best climbing on the planet.

The grand prize winner who found $25.00 by the highway was Mark Christiani. Also, many thanks to all who participated, with special kudos to outing leader David McClintic and the set up crew.

The next Cleanup and Climb will likely be in the last weekend of March, 2013, and if we don't see you at J-Tree, we would love to see you there!
